The Law of Recompense.

There is no wrong, by any one committed,
But will recoil.
Its sure return, with double ill repeated,
No skill can foil.

As on the earth the mists it yields to heaven
Descend in rain,
So on his head who e'er has evil given,
It falls again.

It is the law of life that retribution
Shall follow wrong;
It never fails, although the execution
May tarry long.

Then let us be, with unrelaxed endeavor
Just, true, and right,
That the great law of recompense may ever
Our hearts delight.

STORY TELLER.

MY MISS SMITH.

When I was about to come to America—for though I was born here, I had lived most of my life in London—every one who spoke to me on the subject told me that I should find young girls had much more liberty in the United States, and that this made it pleasanter for young men who desired to pay them attention. Whatever else they said, they were sure to say that.

I was very young—barely large enough as yet to wear high hats and dress coats on occasions of importance—and though I solemnly shaved twice a week, all that appeared on the edge of the razor was a little yellow down.

I was to go into business in New York to take the place of a son of a certain Peter Smith, who had insisted upon going upon the stage instead of into the cotton business.

Old Mr. Smith was, I heard constantly, a prisoner in his own room in consequence of the gout, and his daughter, Miss Smith, was to come on board the vessel to receive me. I remember afterward that I had never heard Miss Smith's age mentioned, but I supposed her to be a mature spinster.

"You can't remember Miss Smith, I am sure," said my elder sister, who had brought me up, our parents having been taken from us while I was yet a child. "But she used to come to see us often when you were four years old, and admired you greatly. It is likely that she will think you ought to have some recollection of a little horse and wagon that she gave you."

"Yes," said Sophia; "and you better pretend to remember it, for I know she is very touchy—very touchy indeed."

I promised to do so. As my sister and her husband intended following me in six months, our parting was not a melancholy one. My voyage was pleasant, and I arrived in New York without having met with any unusual experiences.

It appeared to me absurd that I should have been sent over to be called for as if I were a parcel; but as it had been done I waited in the cabin like a lamb until one of the waiters appeared bearing upon a salver a card with which he presented me. I read it and started to my feet.

"Miss Smith is here, then?" said I.

"Yes, sir," replied the waiter. And I followed him into the presence of a lady in a gray walking suit, who came running toward me, holding out both hands.

"I was so afraid you would not wait for me!" she said.

I had expected an elderly lady. The person who addressed me was both young and pretty, and I hesitated a moment before returning her greeting.

"This is Miss Smith?" I asked.

"Yes," she answered. "And this is Mr. John Smith?"

I bowed and held out my hand. "It is all right, Johnny," she added. "Let us get into the carriage at once. Is everything arranged about your baggage? Dear me, how strange to see you again after all these years! How you have altered!"

"Naturally," I said. "I was such a little fellow when you saw me last."

"I am older than you, you know," said she, as we took our seats in the carriage. "Yes, your hair used to curl; but I suppose you have forgotten me entirely."

Her lip quivered. She was touchy, as my sister had said. I hastened to soothe her.

"Forgotten you? No, indeed," said I. "I was speaking only yesterday of the toy horse and wagon you gave me."

"Did I?" said she. "I had forgotten all about that. What sort of a horse was it?"

"Oh, brown," said I mendaciously; "and a little wagon with wheels."

She nodded. "Yes, I think I faintly remember," said she. "It has been sad, has it not, never to see each other all these years?"

As I had no remembrance whatever of Miss Smith, I knew that I spoke in a somewhat formal and conventional tone when I replied, "Extremely so," and in a moment more I saw that tears stood in her eyes, and that she was trying to wipe them away with her handkerchief without letting me perceive the fact.

She was so pretty and so sweet that I really felt myself quite a brute. I drew near to her and began:

"My dear Miss Smith!"

She suddenly sat bolt upright, her cheeks flaming and her lip quivering. "England must be the stiffest, meanest, most dreadful place!" said she. "You are like a poker, or a column of ice, or something. Miss Smith to me! I suppose they do so over there; but it enrages me. I've been longing to see you—thinking of you, remembering how nice you were, feeling as if the world would change for the better as soon as I saw you, and you call me 'Miss Smith,' as if we had had a quarrel!"

"I suppose we are more formal on the other side," said I. "It is the custom over there."

"An abominable custom!" said she. "There! I am not angry, but—Oh, Johnny, Johnny! I suppose I ought to have remembered how long it was."

"You see," said I, "I felt surprised. I expected to see a spinster; I had no idea you were so young. I haven't got over the surprise."

"How queer men are!" said she. "Of course I am older than you, but we are just of an age to enjoy ourselves together. Now, aren't we?"

"Of course," said I.

"Call me Tiny, and kiss me, then," said Miss Smith.

"Well might they have told me that American girls were freer in their manners than English maidens!" I thought. Then I put my arm about her waist, and said:

"My dear Tiny, I don't think any man could be cold to you, even after being Anglicized so thoroughly as I have been."

"Oh, that English way is not bad," she said quietly, patting my hand and returning my kiss with interest. "It's gentlemanly, and you are well dressed. I'm quite proud of you, and we'll live together all our lives, and never, never part again. Will we?"

I sat dumfounded. This was going on rapidly. Evidently this American Miss Smith had taken advantage of leap year, and was making an offer of her heart and hand.

"There! I am silent again," said she. "Oh, John! I believe you have fallen in love with somebody—that you are engaged to some English girl. Tell me at once if it is so, that I may not build my poor little air castles only to have them knocked over."

"I have never dreamed of engaging myself," said I. "I haven't been in love, and I don't think myself in circumstances to marry."

"I begin to breathe again," said Miss Smith. "As to circumstances, I can make a dollar go as far as five. I'll show you how to live on next to nothing, and live well. Kiss me again, Jack; I am so happy! When shall we go to housekeeping?"

Her view of the matter evidently was that she had proposed and been accepted. However, I kissed her. She was so evidently respectable that I could but believe these proceedings customary in America. I felt that my friends should have informed me how far these Yankee girls could go. It must be that no one thought it wrong in this part of the world; for I knew that Miss Smith was respectable, and her father a man of good position. Moreover, she had an innocent air, with all her boldness, and I could have fallen in love with her on the spot but for her curious conduct. This, however, revolted me. She sat there, after this astounding behavior, without a tremor in her voice or a blush upon her face, and again remarked:

"I'm so happy, Jack?"

"Oh! what were these American girls made of?"

We came to a pause at last before a house which was not quite up to my idea of the wealthy Mr. Smith's residence, but was very respectable, and Miss Smith ushered me into a parlor which seemed to me to be full of girls. In the back one a tea table was spread.

"I've asked everybody to meet you," she said. "All the dear girls who were in the last class at boarding school with me."

Then, having caused me to deposit my hat upon the rack, and having somehow disposed of my traveling bag, she took me by the arm and whirled me about, introducing me to Kate and Ann, Tilly and Nelly, Jane and Eliza, with last names which I did not catch, or forgot on the instant; and each one made some remark to the effect that dear Tiny had spoken so much of me—that she thought of no one else—that they supposed she was happy now, etc.

My bewilderment grew greater, but I was determined to see the affair out. It was to me as curious as any strange ceremonies among the Cannibal islanders would have been.

This was apparently a betrothal party. However, they could not marry me against my will in any land. When it came to that I should assert myself.

At last we were all summoned to the table.

"Your place is at the foot, Johnny," said Miss Smith; and I stood behind my chair, waiting for the ladies to be seated, when a servant whispered something in Miss Smith's ear, at which she turned pale, looked at me for a moment with an unutterable expression in her eyes and fled from the room.

The girls looked after her; one followed her, came back and whispered to the others who, one after the other, left the room.

It occurred to me that the clergyman had arrived, and that the matrimonial ceremonies were about to be celebrated, and I decided to get nearer the door. It might be that my only hope lay in flight. As I entered the front parlor I saw that the hall was deserted, and some one seemed to be in hysterics. Shortly a masculine voice said fiercely, "I'll settle him!" and a youth in a travelling costume came rushing down-stairs three steps at a time.

He entered the room in which I stood and advanced toward me.

"What is the meaning of all this?" said he.

"Exactly what I should like to know, sir," said I.

"I am John Smith," said he.

"So am I," I answered.

"I arrived from England in the —," said he.

"So did I," I replied.

"I am Miss Smith's brother," said he.

The truth began to dawn upon me. "I am not," said I, and then as gravely as possible I related the facts that I have already told you, at the same time producing from my pocket letters which gave witness to my veracity.

"This is a dreadful thing for Tiny," said the young man. "We have been separated since our childhood. She is very excitable and is terribly mortified. She believes that you purposely played a trick upon her, and really I don't know what to say!"

"Don't say anything," I replied. "If I may have my hat and portmanteau I'll go. No doubt I can find my friend very easily. I'll get a cab. I have the address."

"It is awfully absurd!" said the other John Smith.

"Awfully!" said I.

With these words we parted, and about an hour afterward I did shake hands with another Miss Smith, a jolly, middle-aged lady, who enjoyed the story that I told her hugely.

As for the other Miss Smith, I had not known the street to which she took me or the number of the house. I discovered that there were several pages of John Smiths in the directory, and she has passed out of my life as completely as though she were one of those mysterious females who accost the young princes of "The Arabian Nights' Tales," entertain them splendidly in marble halls, where fountains play and slaves serve curious dainties, and who at dawn have vanished with their servants and palaces as though they were but visions of a dream.

Had it not been so I fancy this story might have had a more romantic termination, for I still remember her as the loveliest and sweetest creature whom I ever met, and have often followed some pretty figure for long blocks, only to discover, when at last I got a glimpse of her face, that it was not my Miss Smith. However, I am not old yet. The world is not a very large place, when you come to think of it. I may meet her yet.

VIRGINIA.

Reunion of the Deaf-Mutes of the State

TO BE HELD IN RICHMOND JULY 4TH.

News that Will Interest All who Contemplate Attending.

(From our Virginia Correspondent.)

Things are solid down in Dixie. Everything is a boom. The reunion scheme continues to boom and as loud as Bunker Hill cannonade. Prof. J. W. Michaels, who is at the head of the reunion move, was in Richmond, making arrangements during the first of last week. The JOURNAL correspondent was, of course, anxious to see Mr. Michaels and "write him up." The scribe boarded the noon train for the west on Wednesday, in hopes of meeting Prof. Michaels on the train, but after a search from the engineer's cab down to the rear car of the Pullman, he failed to find him. Some forty miles up the road, the scribe stepped from the train and soon boarded another on the homeward "go." Arriving at home, he proceeded to his quarters and took an hour's nap and dreamed of the reunion boom. But just as he was dozing off, a W. U. T. messenger unceremoniously walked in and presented the familiar yellow envelope. It was a message from the professor, who was up on the next train. Of course, the scribe again went down to the depot, and as the express thundered in, he boarded it and was soon "gliding over the rails" and "making pictures in the air" with the professor. Some fifteen miles up, the train reached the end of its division, and we wandered into a comfortable hotel dining-room, and after satisfying the innerman, we proceeded to the lobby and discussed the reunion scheme until the wee sma' hours. The professor left on the fast west-bound train for Staunton at 1:30 a.m., and the scribe was left to keep company with twenty-five or fifty negro aunties, who meet every train, night or day, rain or shine, snow or blow, to sell travelers some "cookies."

The quill-driver reached home at 6 a.m., after having enjoyed only half an hour's sleep in forty hours.

REUNION ARRANGEMENTS. Professor Michaels gave the JOURNAL reporter a minute detail of what arrangements he has made, while in Richmond. And as this issue of the JOURNAL will be read by several hundred mutes in Virginia, we think it will be of some interest to give an account of all that Mr. Michaels accomplished. The exact hour of meeting has not yet been fixed upon, but it is expected and hoped that all mutes intending to be present will arrive in Richmond not later than 10 o'clock, Saturday morning, July 4th. Ford's Hotel will be the headquarters, the management of that hostelry having agreed to board the mutes, who may wish to stay there and have the money, for $1 and $1.50 per day. The regular price is $2.50 and $3. Several private families will also take boarders at 75 cents and $1 a day.

The House of Delegates, in the Capitol building, has been procured, and the meeting will meet there at not later than 12 m., Saturday, July 4th. Ford's Hotel is opposite the Capitol Square. The first business to be done, will be the election of a temporary chairman. The balance of the programme has as yet not been decided upon.

Mayor J. Taylor Ellyson, of the Capital City, will deliver a welcome address to the mutes, which will be translated into the sign-language, probably by Professor Yates, of the Institution faculty. Some person from among the Virginia graduates will be selected to respond to Mayor Ellyson's address.

A BANQUET. Mr. Joseph H. Heeke, a deaf-mute and graduate of the St. Mary's Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., will tender a banquet at Pizzini's restaurant to the mutes who will be in attendance at the reunion. The time for the banquet will probably be on Saturday night. Mr. Heeke has a good many friends in the Old Dominion. He is a resident of Richmond City. The mutes of Virginia will not fail to appreciate his kindness.

DOWN THE JAMES.

There is a good deal of talk among the leading mutes of the State of having a boat-ride down the James River. The finely equipped steamer "Ariel," can probably be acquired. The steamer during excursions, generally leaves her wharf at 10 o'clock on Saturday nights and arrives at Norfolk at 7 a.m. the next morning. A narrow-gauge railway runs to Virginia Beach from Norfolk; fare 25 cents. The steamer leaves the wharf Sunday evening at 5 o'clock, and arrives at Richmond at midnight. Round trip fare, only $1.50. All mutes intending to go on the steamer will please drop a postal to Wm. C. Ritter, Louisa C. H., Va., so that he can estimate the number who will go and make some arrangement with the steamboat company. It will be borne in mind that the "Ariel" is the only first-class boat plying between Richmond and Norfolk, and that she leaves Richmond every Friday, according to her schedule, so that it is important that all deaf-mutes write and say whether they wish to go or not, so that the company will have its boat ready on Saturday night, also a further reduction of fare will be attempted to secure for those going. The steamer has rooms especially fitted for ladies. Saturday and Sunday nights will be "moonlight nights."

RAILROAD FARE.

Prof. Michaels had a conversation with H. W. Fuller, General Passenger and Ticket Agent of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway. That gentleman assured Mr. Michaels that if a correct estimate could be had of how many mutes will travel over the Road, he will reduce rates accordingly. So it can be seen that it is very important for all mutes to write to Mr. Michaels and give a positive "No," or "Yes," to his postals sent out some weeks ago. No "ifs," "buts," etc., are wanted now. Say positively if you are going or not.

EXPENSES, ETC.

The members of the Association will have to pay a janitor to sweep the House of Delegates, etc., and also purchase some ice. A fee will be put on every member of the association. Perhaps 50 cents for all gentlemen and 25 cents for the ladies.

Everybody intending to be present should bear in mind to have sufficient money to pay board.

OFFICERS.

The election of officers will take place during the first part of the day of the organization. All mutes should bear well in mind to vote for only such men as have taken much interest in the organization of the association.

In our opinion, as well as in the opinion of a score of others, Prof. Michaels should be elected president. No other man deserves that office more than he, and we are confident that all mutes will elect him such. Be sure not to instal officers who only want such and such an office, just to be an officer, but elect men who will further the movement. Professor Michaels must be elected or the association will be an outright failure, and will cause much embarrassment to all who have counted on having a pleasant time, and a profitable one too. Mr. Michaels does not ask for the office, but should he be elected, he will accept, we feel sure. Again, bear in mind to elect him president, or the association will prove a failure.

SOMETHING TO REMEMBER.

The reunion of the Virginia graduates of the old Alma Mater is not gotten up with a view of entering politics, or is it gotten up to make an enemy of the old mother. The object is to meet and discuss subjects which will prove profitable to all concerned, and to renew our love for the old mother teacher.

NOTES.

The Goodson Gazette now appears on time, and contains the usual local news and does not fail to interest all the old alumni. A recent issue contains the following:

We occasionally get a letter of advice as to how the Goodson ought to be run. And we have, of late, seen a letter, or may be two letters, printed in the columns of the "little paper" of another Institution giving some extremely wise views of how the business of the Goodson ought to be conducted. With the most profound deference for the opinions of the writers of the aforesaid letters and of the correspondent of the aforesaid "little paper," we still must be excused for being determined to carry on the Goodson according to our own notion of how it ought to be carried on—that is, as long as the Board of Visitors of the Institution orders no change. And when we desire any advice we will not hesitate to ask for it. Meanwhile, it will be, possibly, a saving of ink, paper, and brain work to some of our friends and admirers if they will allow us to attend to our own business in our own way. Fortunes have been made, we learn, in this way.

Taking it for granted, that we are the "correspondent" referred to, we wish to say a few words.

In several letters to the JOURNAL we have had something to say concerning the Institution. We never had any intention whatever of trying to injure our old mother, or to hurt her feelings in the least bit. What we wrote, we did not consider any thing else than plain every-day talk, and wrote it for such. In our referring to the Goodson office we only spoke our minds, and had no intention of beaming, hurting, or doing anything of the kind to any one over at the alma mater. Oh, no, we would not hurt the old alma mater in any way. We had not the least bit of an idea that what we wrote was taken for an insult, or that it tended to lower our own respect in the eyes of the old alma mater at all, until a few days since, we met a friend who mentioned the matter to us, and we hastily present an apology to our old alma mater and assured her of our highest consideration for her and all connected with the faculty. We regret exceedingly that such an idea of our meaning any disrespect in the articles we wrote got out at the school. Some of them were written to cause some mirth, and we hope our feeble attempt at that kind of business (which failed and caused some unpleasant thoughts on the part of our old alma mater), will be duly excused. And should an apology be due the Institution, we gladly and readily extend it. We never had any idea of "going back on" the old school—our old mother. No, no, indeed. We always have, and will always, remember what the old alma mater has done for us. We would not be what we are to-day if it was not for her tender care. If we had ever thought that our remarks were not pleasantly read at the Institution, we would have offered an apology long ago, but, as we have said above, we only heard it a few days ago from a friend who seemed to know. And we hope our apology will be accepted and that the old alma mater will continue to hold us in as much respect as ever, as on our part, we have never for a moment thought of "going back on her,"—(as the phrase is generally put).

The last issue of the Goodson Gazette contains some very interesting "reunion news." Among the articles is a long letter from Mr. Michaels, in which he publishes a copy of Principal Doyle's letter to him concerning the reunion scheme. We hope to be excused for re-producing it. The letter:

"MY DEAR MR. MICHAELS:—Your kind letter of the 21st inst., extending to Mrs. Doyle and myself an invitation to attend the proposed reunion of the deaf of the State, which is to be held in Richmond at some date (not yet determined) during the coming summer, has been received, and would have been answered sooner but for pressure of business which denied me leisure.

"Please accept my thanks for this invitation, which I shall avail myself of, if I can possibly do so, as will Mrs. Doyle. I am also much complimented by your request that I will, upon the occasion of the reunion, make an address to the deaf there assembled and I shall do so with great pleasure, not promising, however, that the address will amount to much either in matter or in style of delivery.

"I hope that this reunion will prove of great benefit to the Deaf of Virginia, and have no doubt that it will be so, entered upon and so conducted as to do so.

"Cut off as they are, after leaving the Institution, from the society of those with whom they can hold free converse, such a meeting as the proposed reunion cannot but be a source of delight to all the deaf who take part in it.

"Besides this, the opportunities that will be given for an interchange of experiences in the struggle of life out in the big, outside world, cannot but result in much good of a material kind for all who endeavor. Wishing you success in this endeavor,

"I remain,

"Very sincerely yours,

"T. S. Doyle, Principal."

INVITATIONS, ETC.

Invitations have not been sent outside of the State to prominent deaf-mutes and deaf-mute educators to be present. Of course, this will have to be excused, as every one who has seen the organization of a deaf-mute association knows what difficulties are experienced and embarrassments caused. But no doubt, at the second meeting of the association, some invitations will be sent out, and all will be invited to attend, etc.

Those deaf-mutes, who will attend the reunion will, upon their arrival in Richmond, at once go to Ford's Hotel (that is if they have no friends in the city to stay with), and a committee meet them there, and will direct them to their respective boarding places, etc.

Prof. Frank Yates will (and must) be present. An interpreter will be necessary, and he, with his usual ambition, will be the man wanted. A deaf-mute association minus an interpreter would be, indeed, a poor thing!

KANSAS INSTITUTION.

Maggie Seymour, who is in the seventh class, went home two weeks ago on account of poor health.

Mr. Joseph Cartwright, the foreman of the shoe shop, was in Kansas City last Saturday, and bought a nice base-ball cap for Chas. Foshee.

Scott Schwagler, semi-mute, who has attended school for one year, was called home three weeks ago by his father, to help him on the farm.

Isaac Phillips visited his friends, Gus Anderson, Elmer Burson and his brother, last Saturday evening. They are now attending school here.

Mr. Clinton Raines, a student of the West Virginia School for the Deaf, had a good chance to visit us on Saturday last. He belongs to the stone mason's union in Olathe, Kansas. He makes $4 a day, working on the court house.

Mr. James Key, gardener of this Institution, made a flying trip to Kansas City last Saturday.

Silas McEvers went home last Monday to assist his father on the farm. It is said that he will not come back to school again.

Charles Bell, Tracy Elder, Joe Sichel and Norman Hunt, will be cordially invited to witness Field Day's events, at which the members of the Athletic Club will compete for the banner offered by the JOURNAL.

George Shoemaker's parents moved to Burlingame, Kan., last April.

A party of eight deaf-mute boys went down town last week to buy some nice presents. They gave Eddie Funk a big surprise last Saturday. The presents consisted of a nice towel, a straw-hat, three fine handkerchiefs and a cravat. The presents were arranged on a chair during the night. Eddie Funk awoke at 5:30 o'clock a.m., and was much surprised to find the presents. Among those who gave him the gifts were Messrs. Charles Foshee, Fred. Becker, Cornelius Lemley, Anthony Jennings, Bruce Hewitt, Alvin Sperry, Omar Harshman and Iky Croxton. Eddie Funk celebrated his eighteenth birthday on the 9th of this month.

Mr. E. Harrah, teacher of the Eighth Class, will perhaps go to Colorado for his vacation. He will make his old college classmate, Mr. Russel Painter, a long and pleasant visit.

Miss Mary Marshall, matron of this Institution, had a pleasant visit from two friends last Monday.

Mr. C. R. Watson gave an interesting lecture to the pupils in the chapel last Sunday morning.

Mr. James Key received a nice photograph of Mr. Joseph Cox's sweet baby from him last Tuesday.

Miss Orrel Altman arrived at this Institution from Topeka, last Tuesday evening. She is a studious girl and is in the Seventh Class.

Mr. C. L. Zorbaugh, teacher of the First Class, lectured to the pupils last Wednesday morning. His text was: "Behold the lilies of the field how they grow." His sermon was very instructive and interesting. He has deaf parents, who are graduates of the Ohio Institution. His father is now teaching at the Iowa Institution.

Cora Butcher, who has been going to school for two years, was accompanied by Mrs. S. T. Walker as far as Kansas City. She went to Illinois on account of her mother's illness.

Mr. Harvey Knauss, a graduate of the Olathe School for the Deaf last June, has obtained good employment in a furniture store in Garnett, Kan.

Mr. S. T. Walker went to Emporia last Monday, to visit his friend, Rev. J. A. Bright, who is sick. He returned here yesterday.

THE DEAF-MUTES' JOURNAL.

NEW YORK, MAY 21, 1891.

E. A. HODGSON, Editor.

THE DEAF-MUTES' JOURNAL, (published at 164th Street and Ridge Avenue) is issued every Thursday; it is the best paper for deaf-mutes published; it contains the latest news and correspondence; the best writers contribute to it.

TERMS

One copy, one year, $1.50
Clubs of ten, 1.25
If not paid within six months, 2.50

CONTRIBUTIONS.

All contributions must be accompanied with the name and address of the writer, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. Correspondents are alone responsible for views and opinions expressed in their communications.

Contributions, subscriptions and Business Letters to be sent to the DEAF-MUTES' JOURNAL, Station M, New York City.

Inquiries concerning the whereabouts of individuals, will be charged for at the price of ten cents a line.

Specimen copies sent to any address on receipt of five cents.

THE Twenty-Third Annual Report of the Halifax, N. S., Institution, records a prosperous and progressive year, sadly marred by the death of the Principal, James Scott Hutton, in February last. The directors pay an earnest tribute to his memory, and are unanimous in the opinion that the Institution owed its success to his efficient administration during a period of over thirty years, and stands to-day a monument of his ability and faithfulness. A memorial page is also inserted in the report. The number of pupils enrolled aggregate seventy-four. Legacies amounting to over $4,400 have been received during the year.

THE lack of interest shown in the proposed athletic competition between Institutions for the Deaf, has decided us to postpone the "Banner Competition." Out of seventy or more schools, it has been impossible to induce ten to take part. Whether the discrepancy in numbers is caused by fear of failure or apathy towards the Field Day project, those who failed to come into the contest know best. In any case, it is much regretted that the question of supremacy in athletics will not be decided this year. However, those institution organizations that have athletic games this month should send us the record. Next fall regular clubs should be organized and preparations made for field day events months in advance. Notification given; the JOURNAL that such clubs will compete, will insure the renewal of our offer to give a handsome trophy to the winner. It may be that the trophy selected will be a silver cup appropriately engraved. At any rate, the prize will be no shoddy affair, and the club that wins it will have something to be proud of.

THE London papers announce the death of Alexander Melleville, Honorary Secretary and Director of the Llandaff Deaf and Dumb School, Wales. Mr. Melleville started the school about thirty years ago, and at the present time, thirty pupils are enrolled while over one hundred have been educated. Mr. Melleville has been a patient and steadfast toiler in the cause of deaf-mute education, and it is hoped the school which he founded and so faithfully upheld, will not suffer because of his departure to the better land.

Industrial Departments.

SANDY of our Institution exchanges are agitating a change in the management of the Industrial Departments of Schools for the deaf. Some say more hours should be given to trade-teaching; some contend that the acquisition of a trade should be made a greater object with some boys than the training of the intellect, because the said boys seem to have reached their limit in intellectual acquirements, while receptive of industrial training still. Some argue that instructors should have a thorough knowledge of their trade, and possess ability to impart it to the pupils. We do not believe in letting the "literary training suffer, that there may be more time for manual training," but we do believe that the same standard of excellence should be required of the foreman of a shop as a teacher in the educational department. We object to the teaching of trades "in a slipshod, perfunctory manner," as is too generally done. The boy learning a trade should not only be taught to use the tools in an effective way, but also have imparted to him a knowledge of the technical phraseology of that particular trade. He should have opportunity to perfect himself in all the operations connected with his work, as fast as he shows an aptitude therefor. The shop should not be made a money-making establishment, but a manufactory of good, competent workmen, wherein the profits are a secondary consideration.

We have several boys in the shoe-shop here, who, while evincing little enthusiasm at their books or in the schoolroom—largely from natural intellectual incapacity—are yet steady, appreciative and skillful workmen at their trade. With such boys, we think that a knowledge of "colloquial and idiomatic" and technical language is of more importance than the routine of the class-room, beyond the ordinary reading, writing and arithmetic.

Many a boy, on the other hand, is considered stupid because the foreman can not make him understand what is wanted, or how to do a thing properly. The fault is with the foreman in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, the trouble being that the foreman does not understand the language of the boy—cannot communicate readily with him. Such a man has no business in an Institution shop. An outside foreman, it is true, will hardly learn the sign-language in order to be able to give directions to a deaf person working under him, but the man must be very stupid who cannot, by a few well-chosen signs of the natural kind, make an intelligent mute, who has a fair knowledge of his trade, understand what is wanted. We have always held, and time and observation only strengthen us in our belief, that no person has any business in an Institution for the Deaf, in any capacity which necessitates communication with or supposes control over the inmates, who has not an acquaintance with the sign language and other methods of communication with the deaf, or who is not capable of quickly and easily learning them and desirous of so doing. We have no patience with those who make such a position simply a stepping stone to some other employment, or who make it subsidiary to other work which takes up the time not absolutely required by the duties of the position and is apt to encroach upon even that.

It is with teachers as with foremen. Many a teacher—one holding a teacher's position would be more correct—has a most thorough education but has not the ability to impart what he knows to those he is expected to instruct. Many a foreman is in the same relative position. The true test of the capacity and usefulness of either is not how much they know, but how much they are able to impart to those in their charge.—Rome Register.

ITEMIZER.

The idea is to gather into this column items that relate to deaf-mutes personally, or to institutions for the benefit of deaf-mutes. We hope our friends and readers will keep us supplied with items for this column. Mark items to be sent: The Itemizer.

School closes on the 1st of June at the Arkansas Institution.

Mrs. W. O. Fitzgerald, of this city, has been quite sick for some time, but we are glad to learn is now convalescing.

Mr. George Robertson, an uncle of William Kay, of Oil Springs, Ont., was thrown from a buggy recently, and it is thought his injuries will prove fatal.

Franklin B. Flagg, of Belfast, Me., was married to Blanche E. Russell on the 15th inst. They will live in a cottage at Belfast, which was presented to him by his mother.

The Adirondack Literary Association, of the Malone Institution, holds its last meeting for the present term on the evening of May 16th. Mr. Reynolds delivers the closing lecture.

Miss Clara Ammond, of Ottawa, Ont., has been very ill with la grippe and confined to her bed three days, but she has recovered her health again. She lives with her sister Mrs. Dr. L. C. Privot.

On Sunday afternoon, the 17th inst., Rev. Job Turner held a service for deaf-mutes in Grace Chapel, Baltimore, Md., for Mr. Wells, fifty silent persons attending. He left for Petersburg, Va., the same night.

Mr. Edson F. Gallaudet, son of President E. M. Gallaudet of the National Deaf-Mute College, at the election of the Yale's Junior Societies was elected to membership of the "Psi Upsilon" on the evening of May 19th.

J. W. Hess will move his family into his new five-roomed house, built on his lot in South Lima, O., about first of June, as it is nearly completed. It is a one and a half story frame dwelling close to his cobbling shop.

A second story is being added to Pach's studio. This is the third enlargement in three years. Mr. Pach having built a two-story annex in 1889, enlarged again in 1890, and the present improvements will give him the most complete establishment of its kind in the State.—Easton Press.

An annual Strawberry Festival will be given in the Guild Room on Thursday evening, June 10th, under the auspices of the Guild of Silent Workers. The ladies' committee will try to their best ability to make the occasion very delightful. This entertainment will be popular as ever, and there will be a big crowd attend it.

Superintendent Rider and Mr. G. L. Reynolds, of the Northern New York Institution spent two days recently at the ponds in the Adirondack Mountains known as the "State Dam," about thirteen miles from Malone. They had a glorious time trout fishing and had unusual good luck they catching over one hundred of the "speckled beauties" besides many other kinds of fish. The trout were brought back to the institution but the others were left in the boat for those who wanted them. They went for trout and trout only did they bring back with them.

As You Like It.

CHAPEL CUTTING.

A Base-Ball Victory—The Lit—Other Items.

(From our Washington Correspondent.)

The past week has been one to make ordinary students long for vacation, which is but five weeks off. But for a single game of base ball, there has been nothing to awaken college spirit. The weather has been all but intolerable, rain falling nearly every day, and during intervals it has been so cold and windy that most every one preferred to remain indoors rather than to venture out and run the risk of taking cold. Perhaps the Farewell Hop had something to do with the tendency to inactivity. Professor Fay was on the sick list and unable to meet his classes on Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday, so there was nothing to keep up their spirits. It is a fact that the ordinary student is less at ease when he has no recitations than when he is performing his regular duties. He may long for a rest, when wearied over difficult lessons, but when he gets it, if there is not some other diversion for his mind, he finds inactivity more intolerable than the work, and is glad to get back again. There was one consolation, however. Strawberries were on the students' tables Tuesday night, and did very much to cheer the drooping spirits. What old student will not recall the joy of his college days, when the strawberry harvest began, and the appearance in the dining-room of the great dishes of luscious fruit to tickle his palate and make him wish it could always be spring. Mr. Mangam is a thorough gardener, and has made many improvements about the farm, since he took charge; and to him is due our gratitude for the fine supply of garden "saw" this spring.

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Faculty took place on Tuesday, and Wednesday morning. There was an unusually large number of those reminders which are one of the unpleasant features of college life to students who are inclined to take it easy. Most of the "presents" were for "cutting" chapel services. "Cutting" chapel is an old offense, which probably every college student in the country has committed at some time in his college life; and we think is pardonable occasionally. Attendance is not absolutely compulsory here, and no record of attendance is kept, but students are expected to attend. Absences have become so common of late that the Faculty seem to have considered it necessary to take some steps to prevent the chapel from being entirely deserted. It seems that the custom, introduced into several colleges lately, of obtaining the services of regular clergymen, instead of leaving it to professors and tutors to conduct Sunday services, is a good one, and might well be adopted by all. Students become so accustomed to the ways and thoughts of their teachers in the classroom that little interest is manifested when it comes to chapel services. Besides, those who make a specialty of preaching are better capable of delivering interesting sermons.

Mr. James Denison was around on Wednesday showing his brand new patent, issued on his "Fraction Teacher," which was described sometime since. This indicates that the Teacher has genuine merit. Mr. Denison expects soon to place it on the market, and no doubt when its merits once becomes known, he will gain some fame and pocket a good deal of money for his labors.

Our baseball prospects are improving with the advent of Collins as pitcher. On Thursday, the Kendalls went out to the Columbia College grounds and defeated the Columbia in a well-played game, the features of which were the pitching of Collins, and the batting of Odum, especially the latter. Ryan, too, did good work. We have a challenge to play the St. Johns at River View, on Wednesday next, but it has not been settled yet. The game is to be a part of an entertainment for the benefit of St. John's cadet corps, and consequently the Kendalls will play only on condition that all their expenses be paid out of the proceeds. This is quite reasonable, and probably will be met with favorable consideration. Tilton, '93, has resigned as manager of the baseball team, on account of the excitement affecting his heart, and causing nose-bleed. He is deserving of great credit for the energy he has displayed in keeping the ball flying. Stewart, '93, succeeds him, and this is sufficient assurance that we will have good baseball the balance of the season.

For some time past Lange, '92, has been ailing, and on Thursday, to the surprise of all, he boarded a train for home. His molasses pitcher and vacant seat have been decked with crape and flowers by sympathizing classmates. By Lange's departure we lose one of our best tennis players.

We hope Iowa air will soon put him in order.

Gymnasium instructor Adams, was around Wednesday and Thursday taking measurements. Some fine gains have been made, and the general good physical showing is a compliment to the efforts Mr. Adams has constantly put forth. One student who tips the scales in the neighborhood of two hundred pounds, asserts that his waist measure has been increasing ever since he first entered college, and that each year the amount of tape required to encircle his cranium, has been decreasing. Of course, he sees abundant reason in this for condemning college "grub."

Mr. George T. Sanders, '92, of Haverhill, Mass., gave his friends on the Green an agreeable surprise by putting in an appearance on Thursday. A pair of burnisides and a high silk hat were not enough to change him, beyond recognition; the same old George is unmistakable. He is visiting with Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, and assisting him with his "visible speech" printing.

Dr. Gallaudet departed for Massachusetts Friday evening, on business connected with the college. He is expected back to-day some time.

Saturday was set for the annual picnic of the Ephphatha Sunday School, but of course it rained when the day arrived, and so we will go some time this week. River View is the ground, as heretofore, and the Samuel J. Pentz the boat. Most of the students would prefer a new picnic ground, but the powers that be have reason for standing by the old one.

The Literary Society held its regular literary meeting Friday. Whildin, '92, delivered an essay on nationalism. A debate on the question "Resolved: That the present public school system is conducive to the welfare of the nation," followed between Rives, '93, and Ward, '95, in the affirmative, and Madden, '93, and Walsh, '95, in the negative. The affirmative side came off victorious. The dialogue, "Taking Pictures," between Allard, '94, and Murday and Peter, '95, bordered on tableaux. Tilton, '93, declaimed "Elaine" in his inimitable signs, and the last general meeting of the year closed.

Mr. Denison conducted chapel services yesterday, his text being Zach. 4:10.

NATIONAL COLLEGE, May 18, '91.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.

EDITOR JOURNAL:—Charles Thompson, Chairman of the Seventh Annual Picnic of the Brooklyn Society, is the right man in the right place. He is working like a beaver for the success of the picnic. So are all the members, and it is safe to say that it is bound to be the grandest success of any of its former affairs financially. Let us all hope so, anyway.

We have it from the most reliable source, that President Tom Godfrey and several of the members have their eyes firmly fixed on the Johnson Building Junction of Fulton, Flatbush and Hudson Avenues, opposite the stations of the Kings Co. & Union Elevated R. R., and at a point where almost all the surface cars pass to and from the Bridge, a large and airy room, handsomely furnished, can be rented by the year for several dollars cheaper than at Tuttle Hall. Besides, the large hall on the top floor, suitable for banquets, receptions, etc., can be had one night in the year, free of charge, by the Society's renting of one of the fifty rooms by the year, and if desired more than once, can be had for almost nothing, i. e., just enough to pay for gas and cleaning. Should the Society secure one of the rooms, a score of deaf-mutes living in the central, western and southern part of the city would join it.

It is simply sheer folly for Mr. John Wilkinson to suppose for a minute that he could organize a society in this city. He has tried and expressed a desire ninety-nine times. If he is anxious to see a good society in this city, why doesn't he join the Brooklyn Society, and get his heels to do likewise, and make the Brooklyn Society what it should be—a good one.

The Society recognizes neither race nor religion. Its arms are always wide open to receive the deaf as members or visitors, and surely it cannot be said that it is selfish, for, had it not been so generous with its funds, it would now have a bloated treasury. It made a handsome donation to the Gallaudet Statue, the Peet Memorial Fund and the Gallaudet Home. For these reasons, if for no other, every deaf-mute in Brooklyn and New York City should consider it his or her duty to attend the forthcoming picnic. If that is impossible, they should by all means buy a ticket, and also sell one or two to his or her hearing friends.

Dan Henry Brown was the happiest man in Brooklyn last Thursday, and gave his friends choice Havana, cause his charming and estimable wife presented him with a bouncing ten-pound boy. Mother and son are getting along nicely.

Fred Hewitt, lately of Philadelphia but now of Newark, N. J., has obtained a job in this city, and will shortly live here.

Three young gentlemen, who intended to get married this spring, have just decided to wait until next fall, for reasons best known to themselves.

Henry Stengle is sadly missed, still we all wish him every success. "BUSYBODY."

The Meeting of the Board of Directors.

THE CHAPEL EXERCISES.

Items in Brief Gleaned from Here and There.

(From our Fanwood Correspondent.)

The Seventy-Third Annual meeting of the members of the Institution in connection with the election of officers and directors was held at the Institution on the afternoon of Tuesday, the 19th. The day was clear and pleasant and this with the interest in the exercises by the pupils brought a large number of life-members and friends of the Institution. The buildings and surroundings rarely looked lovelier. Under the direction of the Superintendent, the lawns had been nicely mown, and beds of choice plants and flowers greeted the eye on all sides immediately upon entering the main gate. The halls and reception rooms were in gay attire with flowers giving forth their sweet perfume, while the main staircase was tastefully decorated with bunting, and the national ensign holding a conspicuous position.

After a beautiful repast had been partaken of by the guests, the directors and life members assembled in the library and elected officers as follows: President, Hon. Enoch L. Fancher, LL.D.; First Vice-President, Rev. Charles A. Stoddard, D.D.; Second Vice-President, Morris K. Jesup; Treasurer, George A. Robbins; Secretary, Thatcher M. Adams.

The following Directors were elected for a term of three years: Rev. Thomas Gallaudet, Benjamin H. Field, John L. Tonnele, John T. Terry, Frederic J. DePeyster, David S. Eggleston, George A. Peters, M.D., J. Hood Wright. After the elections, all repaired to the chapel where an exhibition by the pupils was given under the direction of Dr. Peet.

Hon. E. L. Fancher, LL.D., the President of the Board, presided and called upon Rev. S. H. Virgin to offer prayer. Dr. Peet then took charge and called up a class of beginners from Mr. Van Tassel's and Miss Ensign's classes, some of whom had been only six weeks under instruction, others ten months. They pointed to objects, gave the names in writing, and also tried to speak them. Miss Rice's class was called up and wrote answers to directions given them. Benson, the blind boy, was with them, and took part in the exercises, writing with the other pupils, and spoke the words: "I am a blind boy."

A recitation of Whittier's "The Angel of Patience" was delivered in a beautiful and touching manner by Miss Ella F. Taylor. Meanwhile, the members of the High Class were busy answering questions proposed by the audience on current subjects, such as the labor question, Reciprocity, the Chilean trouble, with some still more abstruse topics as, Which is the more inspiring season, Winter or Summer? Which type of two generals do you prefer, the Napoleon or the Washingtonian? Name the two leading English poets of the century.

A class of fourteen boys from Prof. W. B. Peet's class were then called upon to repeat two sentences in concert. Next six little fellows selected from Prof. Fox's third class were introduced to illustrate the combined method as practiced in this Institution. W. E. Marshall then gave some signs representing plants and animals, and this was followed by the reading of a "welcome" written on the type-writer by R. T. Clinton, the blind boy. Mr. W. G. Jones was called for by the audience and gave several stories in his inimitable style.

"America" in concerted signs, by High Class girls preceded the Benediction by Rev. Thos. Gallaudet, D.D., which closed the very interesting programme.

We have seen so many questions asked in regard to the subject of the painting in the main hall, that the following question asked Miss May Martin, during the exercises, and her reply thereto, will be read with interest.

"What does the painting lately presented to the Institution by the widow of John Carlin represent?"

"It is without doubt intended to represent the bribing of the guard of Christ's tomb. When Christ had been consigned to the tomb, the priests, remembering that he had said that he would rise again in three days, asked the governor for a watch to prevent any one stealing his body. The soldiers were sent to the tomb, and a strong seal was set upon it. During the night, there was a great earthquake, and the angel of the Lord descended and rolled away the stone. The glory which surrounded them dazzled the eyes of the soldiers, and they fell to the ground. In the morning they hastened to the priests, and related all that had happened. The priests realized that Christ had spoken the truth, but they were hard of heart and would not let the multitude know it. Giving large sums of money to the soldiers, they persuaded them to account for the disappearance of the body by saying that the disciples had stolen it while they slept. The picture shows one of the guards relating his experience, and apparently unwilling to receive the proffered bribe. Another receives it willingly. There is fear and evil intent upon the faces of the priests and keepers of the treasury. It is a fine painting, and we are proud of the attainments of the artist, who was a congenital deaf-mute, and overcame to such a remarkable degree his handicap, even succeeding in writing one or two really fine poems."

Mrs. E. H. Currier's Circle of King's Daughters, called the "Happy Workers," were to have had a lawn party and sale of articles made by the Circle during the year. Rain spoiled the first part of the programme, but the sale brought in over one hundred dollars, which will be used to endow a crib at the Sea Side Hospital. This circle is composed of little girls ranging in age from four to twelve years. Prof. Jones' daughter, Ethel, and Mr. E. A. Hodgson's little girl, Beatrice, are members. It is thought that the latter was the youngest Daughter of the King, at the time of enrollment, in the United States. She was less than two years old then.

On May 9th, the Fanwoods played a picked nine from the Heights, and defeated them by a score of 17 to 6.

The Resolutes on the same day played with their old enemies, the Black Diamonds, but the game was not played out, as the odds were against them, with the umpire constantly giving decisions in favor of the Black Diamonds.

Congratulations come all the way from Arkansas on the victory won by the Fanwoods over the Jaspers. If the Optic scribe had read our report of the game more closely, he would have seen that it was the Jasper Reserves that the Fanwoods defeated. If it had not been for the rainy weather last Saturday, the Fanwoods would have tried with the Jaspers, then if they defeated them, congratulations would be in order, as it is indeed over twenty years since a nine from this Institution has been able to rob the "Jasps" of their glory, as the Optic scribe says.

As a result of over-training for the field day, Martin Glynn is now confined in the hospital. A change has been made with the High Class boys' training. From now until Decoration Day, they will be at liberty after three o'clock in the afternoon. Some have already taken advantage, and are putting in some solid training.

Fred W. Meinken, a former pupil of this Institution, is a member of the Manhattan Athletic Club. He takes a great deal of interest in athletics, and has decided to present a silver watch to the person who scores the most points on May 30th. He was up here last week, to arrange with Secretary Maynard for the prize. He says that he is very busy now; his leisure time is mostly devoted to training for future contests, which he intends to enter in the near future.

Lewis F. Lyons' smiling countenance loomed up Saturday morning last. He came to see the boys and about the field day. He says he is sorry that graduates are barred, but will be on hand on May 30th, with twenty of his friends to cheer his favorites on to victory.

Miss Mary Shattuck, a niece of Miss Prudence Lewis, with a young lady friend, stopped here for a few hours on Friday to see the Institution, and at the same time to pay her respects to Miss Lewis. She was on her way home to Norwich, N. Y., from the School of Oratory of Boston, Mass., where she recently graduated with honors.

Mr. Louis Stauch, the brother of John Stauch, is having a pavilion built at West Brighton, Coney Island, and when completed will be one of the largest and finest on the Island. John anticipates a big time the coming summer.

The latest groups taken by photographer Douglas are the I. M. C., the High Class girls and a few others. One and all do Mr. Douglas great credit. The price is only twenty-five cents, and Mr. Douglas is meeting with a ready sale.

Mr. Joaquin Gomez, a deaf-mute from the Republic of Columbia, South America, was admitted as a pay-pupil last week.

A. QUAD.

Troy, N. Y.

Messrs. Mull and Sparrow, of Albany, and Messrs. Smith and Burt, of Troy, N. Y., had a debate on the following question: "Was the recent lynching of the Italians at New Orleans justifiable?" The judges appointed on the occasion were, Messrs. Collins, Palmer, Kendrick and Connors, and in conclusion they decided in favor of the affirmative.

The annual election of the officers took place at our society rooms. The only change made was that of appointing Wm. T. Collins Secretary, and J. S. Kenny, Sergeant-at-arms. The meeting then adjourned.

Mr. Collins was elected the general manager of the "combined picnic and excursion," and his assistants are Messrs. Palmer, Secretary, and Mull, Treasurer.

Mr. J. L. Connors delivered a lecture on the "Second adventist's expectations, 1843," before the Albany Bible Society. Messrs. Ritter, Burt, from this city, and Miss Lizzie Murphy, of Cohoes, were among those present.

Wm. G. Shanks will soon gabble something about his vacation in North Easton, where J. R. Becker lives. The latter was in town recently, and called on the writer at the shop.

Winnipeg, Man.

A regular meeting of the P. L. S. was held in the chapel of the Institution, on the 29th of April. The President being absent, the Vice-President took the chair. Nearly all the members were present. After order being called, the programme was begun with the introduction to the members by the Vice-President of Mr. James Duncan, who has taken up his abode in the city for the present, and who has since been initiated into our society as an excellent addition. The minutes of last meeting were read and approved of. Then came the debate on the question: "Resolved, That Summer is a more pleasurable and interesting season than Winter." The affirmative side was led by Mr. J. R. Byrne and a couple of supporters, and the negative side was led by Mr. A. A. McIntosh with two supporters. Both sides fought gallantly and made good marks. At the conclusion of the debate, the judges retired, and on re-appearing, the foreman gave his report, informing the members that he, with his colleagues, had a hard nut to crack to decide which side won. He then revealed the decision agreed upon among them that they would make it a tie. This closed a successful series of meetings for the summer holiday till the cooler days return in the fall.

We were agreeably surprised by the recent arrival, in our midst, of Mr. James Duncan, of Stratford, Ontario. All his old friends here are glad to see him again after long years of separation. Jim is my old chum, and was my classmate at Belleville. I have always known him to be a quiet and studious chap, fond of home and apparently with no inclinations for adventure. So you can imagine more than I can describe my surprise and delightful feeling at meeting such an old friend so unexpectedly, when I thought he was at home many hundred miles away. But such is life, our paths cross and recross one another at certain places, and as we journey on life's highway, we sometimes meet and salute and go our course, not knowing when or where we will confront again; or, in fact, we cannot tell, for certain, if we will at all meet again.

At the checker club rooms in the city, on the evening of April 30th, a contest took place between Mr. Edward Kelly, of Winnipeg, the champion draughts player of Canada, and Mr. Duncan. The score, at the close of four games played, stood two games for Kelly, none for Duncan, and two drawn. Jim had been out of practice for some time before the match, which came off incidentally, and he did not at all feel like playing it. But it is understood that he will meet the big fellow again at some date, and a better showing in Jim's favor is to be expected. The club consists of Jim and an excellent player.

Though I do not know who that fluent and charming writer, signing herself "Pansy," may be, I have always been interested in her fertile and fragrant garden of blossoms in the columns of the JOURNAL. In glancing over her last jottings, I noticed an item expressing her temporary suspension of correspondence to the JOURNAL, as it was her intention of taking an extended ramble in the Western States and Canada. I understand she will be traveling this way during the vacation. The Institute will be closed, but that shall not interfere with her intended visit. The principal and his wife will be glad to meet her, and the writer will be delighted to aid her in finding where the Institution is located.

I have been informed by a certain individual, at present here, who has lately been in Toronto, that the mother of the Queen City wished to know if the writer could tell them if Mr. R. E. Bray, the artist, was still in this city. I am glad to be able to inform them that that gentleman is, at present, in Chicago on business in connection with his profession, but I am unable to tell if he intends to return to the Prairie City for some time.

Death of Mr. Sayles Works.

After a lingering illness for some years, of consumption, Mr. Works, of Palmyra, N. Y., passed to rest peacefully on Sunday, the 17th.

About a year ago, Dr. Gallaudet called on him and his wife, and he had a desire to be baptized by him, and Dr. Gallaudet baptized him and his wife.

Mr. Works had several children by his first wife, of whom all were born deaf. Only two survive him, one son in Hannibal, and the other Mrs. Emily Barnhisel, of Girard, Ohio.

He leaves behind him a wife to mourn his loss. Mr. Works was eighty-eight years old at the time of his death. He was a man of sterling worth, and always wanted to do what was right.

ADELPHI UNION REPRESENTED AT DUNWOODIE.—NOTES, PERSONAL AND OTHERWISE.

(From our New York Correspondent.)

A good round one hundred and fifty people could have filed into the Guild Room of St. Ann's Church on the evening of May 12th, without in the least disturbing the comfort of the audience assembled there a little before the half hour after eight.

It would have been a pleasure to note the presence of even half that number. But the weather, you know; it looked like rain, you know; it was too warm to be in-doors, you know; such a dreadful headache, you know; there were other engagements, you know; and you can put all the other knows you know together, sum up, and still, perhaps, be far from the right one. It is thus accounted that scarcely two dozen deaf-mutes considered a very interesting subject in the hands of a gentleman well able to discuss it worthy their presence. And deaf-mutes are always hankering after a good lecture.

Rev. Mr. Chamberlain was the speaker of the evening, and his subject, "Reciprocity," proved of much interest to his small, yet appreciative audience. In his sign-delivery, Mr. Chamberlain takes pains to have his hearers comprehend the full meaning of what he has to say, and on this occasion, his efforts proved no exception to the rule. The proceeds went to the Gallaudet Home. Among the audience were Messrs. W. O. Fitzgerald, Henry Knox, A. A. Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. Heyman, Rob. Harth, and others.

Saturday evening last, was visitor's night at the handsome and palatial home of the Manhattan Athletic Club on Madison Avenue and Forty-sixth Street. To Charley LeClercq, who wears a Cherry Diamond emblem on the left lapel of his coat on such occasions, we owe thanks for having been one of the guests. Ye Editor, Mr. E. A. Hodgson, who accepted the other invite, will be apt to second our motion that a very delightful evening was passed. The guests were privileged to inspect the club's quarters from cellar to house top, and under the guidance of Mr. LeClercq, his guests were not backward in allowing themselves to be shown about. The swimming pool in the basement was inviting enough to tempt one to doff his clothes and take a plunge. The other parts of the bathing department were models in the matter of appointments. There were at least two thousand gentlemen scattered about the building, including members and guests. A theatrical performance was in progress in the handsome theater of the club house. Vocal and instrumental music entertained a large number of others in the gymnasium overhead. The great Princeton and M. A. C. trainer, Robinson, was there, and received considerable attention. The card room was inspected, and a game of pinochle played. There was much to interest one in the gymnasium.

The reading room of the club is abundantly supplied with food for the members who use its luxurious interior. Two life-size figures, carved out of solid oak, representing athletes in different poses, guard the entrance. On the opposite side is the billiard parlors, guarded by two other figures—one representing an athlete in position for throwing the hammer, and the other, a runner in position awaiting the crack of the pistol. Cherry diamonds were visible on nearly everything handled. In the secretary's room the keys of the house hung in the center of a cherry diamond. It was not until near midnight that the guests began to thin out, which will suffice to demonstrate there is much to entertain one lucky enough to be a member of the Manhattan Athletic Club. Applicants in line now awaiting their turn to have their names presented, reach far into the hundreds.

A tremendous crowd of people, representing the Catholic diocese of New York City and suburbs attended the ceremonies incidental to the laying the corner stone of the new St. Joseph's Theological Seminary, at Dunwoodie, Yonkers, last Sunday. It is variously situated that from 50,000 to 90,000 people made the vicinity their objective point. Bad railroad arrangements prevented all getting them. The Adelphi Literary Union was represented at the ceremonies by a delegation headed by President Thomas Tighe, consisting of Messrs. Jas. Russell, Jno. Lloyd, Jr., Jas. Lonergan, P. A. Campbell, John F. O'Brien, Robt. Harth, and Peter Buttery, Jr.

The "bhoys" congregated last Saturday night, at the home of Mr. Henry Greer, and made that individual feel life was still worth living, even though he had arrived at another birthday. They had previously clubbed together with the "almighty dollar," and made Mr. Greer the recipient of a token, in consideration of his generosity for keeping open house so often. In the words of one who reached home at an early hour, "the bhoys had a high old time."

The Pink Tea Party this Tuesday evening, under the directorship of Miss Lillie M. Price, promises to have a large attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Lloyd, Jr., have moved to the house of Mr. Lloyd, Sr., on 126th Street, and now there is a happy family of the Lloyds of Harlem all domiciled under the same roof.

Mr. Albert Ballin has issued invitations to a large number of people, to view a life-size painting of Dr. Gallaudet, painted by Mr. Ballin himself. It hangs in the gallery of W. Schaus & Co., on Fifth Avenue, and will be exhibited from May 15th to June 3d.

Mrs. Theo. I. Lounsbury and sister, Miss Nettie Bothner, will sojourn in Connecticut for a month or longer beginning with July. Mr. Lounsbury will continue at his business in the city, making frequent trips between here and Connecticut.

A strike occurred recently among the marble workers in the employ of Matthews, the soda-water man. Wm. Knowlton, a deaf-mute, was the only workman who did not go out. Notice has been given to the members of the Marble Catter's Union, that Wm. Knowlton is to be refused work in Union shops, until he has forfeited a fine of $100. He was on the membership roll of that organization. The Union feels confident of bringing Matthews to terms.

The Adelphi Literary Union games will be governed by Amateur Athletic Union rules. They have become registered under that organization, and the Schedule Committee have granted them the date, Friday, June 26th.

MONTAGUE TIGG.

Baltimore, Md.

Monday morning, May 8th, the writer stepped aboard the car at Camden Station bound for Bay Ridge, the Coney Island of Maryland. The morning was fine indeed, just such as one would expect in this climate. The ride over the Pleasure route, such as it is eventually called, deserves mention from a more practical pen than mine. The air is filled with the smell of roses, strawberries and fruit now being gathered. A ride of twenty-eight miles brought me to the Ridge, a beautiful, breezy spot overlooking the noble Chesapeake Bay. The writer noticed many new improvements, and those who were there last summer will hardly recognize the place. After spending a few hours and inspecting everything of interest, the scribe again boarded the train and was soon whirling for home at a rapid rate of speed.

The Maryland Deaf-Mute Association, G. W. Veditz, President, will give an excursion to this resort on August 6th, and a big crowd is predicted. At a meeting of the society last week, only minor business was transacted. The report of the Treasurer showed that the finances of the society were in a healthy condition. The election of new officers takes place on June 3d.

The writer has been informed on good authority, that another deaf-mute couple will be married before the summer months have passed by. La Grippe still holds its grip here. We have two or three patients who recently fell heir to it.

Mr. Wm. A. Faulkner and Miss Cora E. Bull left home on Saturday evening last, for a two days' visit to Miss Cora's parents in Cockeysville.

A number of the boys here are talking about being present at the Apollo Club's picnic at Brandywine Springs, on July 27th.

Last week there arrived at this port from Germany, a deaf-mute by the name of Heinrich Boss. After looking into his case, the Board of Immigration decided to send him back to his native heath.

On Sunday, Rev. Job Turner arrived in this city and held service in the chapel before a large audience composed of deaf-mutes. Afterwards he left for Richmond and the South.

Rev. Thomas Gallaudet is expected in this city before long, and it is the desire of the deaf of this city, that he will assign some one to hold regular services. It is a pity that so large a city as Baltimore should be without a pastor or lay reader.

On Saturday night, a young deaf-mute, who is still in his teens, was arrested and fined for being drunk and disorderly on the streets. It is hoped that he has learned a good lesson and will hereafter shun strong drinks and bad company.

Mr. Wells is still very sick, and his sister in New York has been telegraphed for.

Quiet Wedding.

In Oswego, N. Y., on May 5th, at 10 o'clock P.M., in presence of few friends of pride and groom, Miss Rose May Works, of Hannibal, N. Y., and Mr. C. E. Harding, of Fulton, N. Y., were united in marriage by the Rev. Mr. Palmer, of the first Baptist Church, after the ceremony a wedding dinner was served at the Ringland Hotel, after which the happy couple were driven to Fulton, where they will make it their future home after a tour to Niagara Falls. Mr. Herbert Schouten, of Sterling, N. Y., acting as groomsmen, and Miss Pearl Stevens, of Hannibal, N. Y., as bridesmaid. The bride was beautifully dressed in cream silk henrietta tastefully trimmed with Spanish lace and flowers, while that of bridesmaid was of blue silk and lace. The bride is the recipient of numerous useful gifts. Our best wishes are extended to them.—Hannibal News.

A Surprise Party.

The hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Belknap, of Philadelphia, was the scene of a small surprise party, on Saturday evening, May 9th. We with a lady friend, were in the Quaker City shopping, that afternoon, and concluded to stop over Sunday, at the aforesaid place, when a number of mates got wind of it and invaded the premises with all the enthusiasm of a good old-fashioned surprise.

First, there came in two or three ladies with mysterious packages, which, further in the evening, proved to contain cake. Then a few mates dropped in by ones and twos and said to us, "Get Mrs. Belknap out of the way." Which we were about to do when fate saved us that trouble, for the fire-bells rang—the engine dashed by and several blocks away a bright red glow illuminated the evening sky, and both she and us were soon out of the house, surprise or no surprise.

During our absence, several genial and jolly members of the celebrated Apollo Club, of Philadelphia, arrived with more refreshments and instituted a hunt for us. We were found and brought into the house, where fun and games, etc., waxed fast and furious until 12 P.M. To say we enjoyed ourselves for all it was worth, is not saying much. On Sunday, although very warm, we again visited the beautiful home-like rooms of the Apollo Club, and were right royally entertained.

We thought we had spoken enough of the famous club of deaf-mutes, but it seems we have not. They have bettered their rooms much since the short time I was there before.

They now have a part of their large parlor set apart for theatrical purposes—stage, curtains, etc., galore and all of the best make. Success to their efforts.

Much has also been added to the walls of the main room. The red, white and blue attests to the patriotism of the members.

We wish that every city in the United States where deaf-mutes reside had a club room and modelled from that of the Apollo. There is no better place in the Union than theirs. It helps the members to find work, discourages idleness and loafing by providing a place where those prone to the above can find amusement, reading and the society of their own class, and keeps them out of mischief generally. It was our pleasure to meet William Durian, wife and two beautiful little boys. They are doing well, and are very popular among the mates there.

Theodore Bailey, of Newark, N. J. is staying with your correspondent for a few days. He has "a pull" at the State House, and will soon be a State Official in this city. What or whereof this deponent saith not.

Respectfully yours,
PORTIA.

Out of Shape.

"What singularly crooked fingers the deaf-mute has."

"Yes. They used to be straight, but he tried to learn Russian. It is a fearful language for the fingers."

Even the Dumb Jaw the Umpire.

LOUISVILLE, May 12.—Simon Gormley of Crab Orchard was two years ago smitten with paralysis. He regained his physical health but was unable to speak a word. A few days ago while watching a game of ball he received another stroke which threw him into violent convulsions. He was put in bed, and the next day astonished everybody by sitting up and talking. He had regained his voice, but has lost his recollection of all events during the past two years. It is believed he will recover.—New York Recorder.

A Deaf Man, Struck by a Train and Killed Instantly.

Jacob Post was instantly killed by the American Express train, five miles west of this city, Saturday evening about 7:30 o'clock. Post is a cobbler by trade, and lives alone on a small piece of land just west of the Woodville mines. Saturday afternoon he came to this city and about 6 o'clock he started for home in company with George Robinson in a buggy. When they reached Woodville railroad crossing he got out of the buggy and started to walk down the track to his home, which was about an eighth of a mile away. It was raining very hard and it was very dark. He was seen by the engineer when a short distance away, and the danger signal was given, but Post, who was quite deaf, did not appear to hear the whistle and continued on the track, he was struck by the engine when within two blocks of his shanty. His right leg, left arm and collar bone were broken and the back of his head smashed in. The engineer had applied the air brakes before the train reached him, and it was brought to a stop a short distance from where he was struck. He was picked up and carried to his shanty and word sent to Sheriff Boyle. Sunday morning the sheriff accompanied by Coroner Alder went out and looked up the case. A jury was impaneled and the remains were brought to this city by Desnover and McQuillen. He has no relations living in this country but a letter was found from his son who lives in Holland. He was sixty-three years of age, of medium height, with a very intelligent face. He owned the little home where he lived but was not known to possess other means. The inquest will be held to-morrow at 1:30.—Jackson Citizen, May 4.

Mrs. E. V. Brown desires to inform the members of the "Ladies Sewing Circle" of the Gallaudet Home that there will be a meeting to be held in the Guild Room on Tuesday evening, May 26th, and invites any others to come and join them. Business of importance is to be transacted for the season. Full attendance is earnestly solicited.

COLUMBUS.

Great Diamond Victories.

AND ITEMS PERTINENT THERETO.

A Wedding Card.

(From our Columbus Correspondent.)

Saturday was a cold day. Cold in the atmosphere and cold for all opposing clubs the institution boys played with; for in every one of the three games the mates put their opponents, McGinty-like, at the bottom of the sea. Early in the week, the first nine of the Independents received an invitation from the Ohio Wesleyan University Club of Delaware to come up Saturday for an exhibition of strength. The O. W. U. Club is a crack organization, and has been having every thing its own way thus far this season. The club expected to make mince meat of the Independents by the time it got through with them. How far the O. W. U. club realized their fond expectations, the score will tell the story. Upon receipt of the invitation Superintendent Knott consulted with the manager of the Independents, and it was decided to allow the club to go to Delaware. Accordingly the members, in charge of Odebrecht, with the Journal's correspondent bringing up the rear, boarded the 12:20 P.M., big-four train, and an hour later landed in the ancient college town. They were met by the manager of the O. W. U.'s, and escorted to the Hotel Donavan, where uniforms were hastily donned, and then taken to the grounds. By the way, they are enclosed. Arriving there, it looked as if no one took interest in base-ball, for less than a score of people were within the enclosure.

Our impression was the cold atmosphere, equal to a December day, had something to do with the slim attendance. However, half an hour later, we changed our opinion on this score, for people began to arrive by the dozen and by the time, "play ball" was sung out by the umpire between five and six hundred people, including students of both sexes, were in attendance. The Independents were first at the bat, and before the third man was out had one run to their credit. This they duplicated in the second inning, and added a run in each of the fourth and sixth innings. Up to this time, there opponents, had secured a run in the fourth and two in the sixth innings, giving the Independents, a lead of one run. Interest in the game heightened at this point to great tension. It was a nip and tuck affair. The seventh was a blank for both sides. In the eighth, the Independents added three runs to their score, and cheering became wild for the game seemed as good as won by the silent club. Base-ball, however, is very uncertain business, and such it proved in this game, for when O. W. U.'s had finished their half of the eighth inning, they also had three runs marked to their credit. Every body in the grand stand got on their feet now to see the result of the last inning. The Independents went through it in blank order and the O. W. U.'s well fared no better. A volley of cheers then rent the air, and the mute players were roundly applauded by the audience and many came to shake hands with them. Score as follows:

INNINGS.	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
INDEPENDENTS.	1	0	1	0	1	0	3	0	7
O. W. U.	0	0	0	1	0	2	0	3	0

The O. W. U.'s boys are a gentlemanly set of players, and all through the game, conducted themselves in a manner that was highly praise-worthy. The umpire, too, should come in for a good word. Though a member of the O. W. U., yet his decisions were prompt and fair to both sides, and not a word of complaint was heard thereon. The Independents also conducted themselves in very becomingly and won many friends by their quiet, gentlemanly demeanor. They seemed to be favorites all around. They have been invited to come and play another game. This will depend upon circumstances. Should they do so, and the weather is fine, we predict the attendance will reach over a thousand.

The second nine of the Independents, took the place of their seniors to fill out an engagement with the Insane Asylum club. The latter club was an easy prey to our boys—score 27 to 17.

A smaller nine played with a club on the Institution grounds, and won the game by 31 to 10 runs.

While in Delaware, we met Messrs. Barton and Cook. The former is a printer in the office of the Daily Press, the latter a cigar-maker. Both are doing well. We found Mr. Louis A. Anthoni at his establishment head over heels at work, in fact too busy to attend the game in the afternoon. However, he called on the boys before their departure to congratulate them upon their success.

We found Miss Mary McDaniel, of the class of '73, making her home with Mr. Anthoni.

Mr. Eddie L. Molyeross, one of the owners and editor of the Critic, was an unexpected visitor at the Institution Tuesday. His many friends will all sympathize with him in the death of his mother week before last, which called him East.

Here is the sequel of the coming wedding hinted in our last letter. The invitation is printed on a very becoming card, and as we have been favored with one, due particulars will be given in the JOURNAL of the approaching ceremony:

Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Weaver request your presence at the marriage ceremony of their niece, Alice M. Elsey, to Mr. Frank L. Friday, at their residence, 401 Rich Street, on Wednesday evening, May 27th, 1891, at eight o'clock.

ONTARIO INSTITUTION.

ANNUAL EXAMINATIONS—THE MUMPS, FOOT-BALL MATCH—MISCELLANEOUS MATTER.

The mumps somewhat interfered with the regularity of the annual written examination, as a number of pupils were confined to their rooms, and were put through the ordeal when able to endure it. The general results were quite satisfactory, the Superintendent expressing himself well pleased with the papers. There was a big pile of foolscap consumed in the transaction, as the senior pupils used not less than twenty sheets each, on an average. Probably three thousand half-sheets were written by all the pupils.

About thirty young ladies, students at Albert College, visited the Institution on the 13th inst., under the chaperonage of their teachers. They were a vivacious, intelligent bevy of rosy-cheeked lassies, and seemed to be interested in what was exhibited. The Superintendent, Matron and Supervisor conducted them through the Institution in three battalions, the teachers suspending their regular class work a short time to meet the demand for information. After school closed, the visitors had half an hour at their disposal for an inspection of the industrial classes, before the "carry all" arrived from the city to convey them back to the college.

They highly complimented all concerned on what they saw and heard. The spring has been remarkably cold and dry, thus greatly retarding the growth of vegetation. We have been waiting patiently for the full effulgence of leaf and flower on the broad lawn in front of the Institution, and have almost wearied of the sombre hue that lingered on tree and shrub far into the May month. There is now an emerald prospect, and a few more days of genial sunshine will transform the scene into a "thing of beauty," which will be "a joy forever."

The girls were consoling themselves with the belief that the mumps would not invade their side of the Institution, as only a few were victims of the disease, but recently the attack has extended all along the line, and they are now convinced that they crowded too much before they were out of the woods.

A large number of thrifty young maples have been planted along the fences, and wherever there were vacancies in the arboreal ranks. The total number of this favorite tree, now growing about the Institution, in all degrees of maturity, must exceed two hundred. When they expand their leafy boughs to the fullest extent, the Institution will be quite hidden from view to persons passing on the road.

The teachers subject to chapel duty are beginning to close their services for the session, Mr. Beaton being the first to reach a finis. There are five of them, each taking a week in alphabetical order. While "on duty," a teacher conducts all the chapel services, says grace at dinner, and takes a general supervision of pupils during school hours. This duty does not conflict with that of the Supervisor, who is always "on duty."

All are glad to see Miss Ostrom back at her post again, after an absence of several weeks through sickness.

The bulky figure of Jos. McEwen will be missed from our halls and classrooms hereafter. He was suddenly called home to his father's bedside. His father has since died, so it is probable that his school days are over, and he will begin the sober business of life.

The first football match of the season took place on the 25th ult. It was between a team of our smallest boys, and eleven young aspirants from the city. Both sides got thoroughly well winded, galloping up and down our large field. The result was nothing for either side, but as usual our boys had the best of it.

We suppose our friends in Toronto and its vicinity have received a copy of the latest "wrinkle" in circulars. We hope we will never see the like again. Surely, Mr. Smith will be a "good boy." We can just imagine his fat sides shaking with laughter, when he read it.

Tramps have not been so numerous lately. Perhaps the experience two of them got at the wood-pile has deterred others. The action of the boys in making them split wood for their dinner has been condemned, and hereafter they will re-victual at the kitchen and go on their way in peace.

We recommend "Prairie Jack's" recent letter in the JOURNAL to the careful perusal of all aspiring claimants for honour, re the establishment of the new institution for the deaf in Manitoba. Perhaps it will interest some of the so-called "pioneers" to know that years before any of them were ever heard of, the teacher of a hearing school sent here for books and instructions, and commenced the work. He taught the deaf in his neighborhood very acceptably.

The Belleville Business College Foot-ball Club faced our second eleven on our field for a match in the afternoon of Saturday, the 2d inst. Several old players, drawn from various clubs throughout the country, are members of the college club, and they played a stubborn game, but our "kids" were a little too much, even for them. When the game opened, they had it in their own way for a little while, and they were very much encouraged. A confident smile passed around among their friends and backers, and we think if we could have heard the remarks would have been, "The dummies are not much, after all; see how our men are pressing them; we will fix them soon," etc. But they did not understand the despised "dummies" tactics. They were saving their wind and getting warmed up. The college boys sent in a swift grounder at the goal corner which Bradshaw just managed to turn aside with the tips of his fingers and saved the goal. This put our boys on their mettle, and they at once got to work and dribbled the ball up near the college goal, where McIssac lifted it over the heads of the defence and dropped it down right on the goal, but it struck the cross bar in its fall and bounced foul. McKenzie got the ball from the kick off and sent in a hot shot from the left wing, which the goal keeper essayed to hold, but there was too much bounce in the well-inflated rubber and he dropped it. Before he could regain it Hence was on him, and "swiped" it through. During the first half, Windomburg, who headed the right wing, got a bad knock on the eye and had to retire, Lockhart taking his place.

After ends were changed, McKenzie and Lockhart each kicked a goal, making three to nothing in our favor. Towards the end of the game the College boys came very near scoring again. Their "centre forward" had a clear kick on the goal from only a few feet distant. He thought that he had such a sure thing that he resolved to make it "a thing of beauty" and poised gracefully for the kick. The delay was fatal, for McIssac was down on him before he got his foot down and bowled him over in the dust and saved the goal. Our opponents took their defeat very gracefully. In their account of the match to the city papers they let themselves down easily. They decided that "they had the better team, only want of practice lost them the game." We hope they will try again. The first eleven would like a little try at them. The players on our side were: Bradshaw, Chantler, Goodhand, Faubert, Bridgeford, McIssac, Lockhart, Hence, Chambers, McKenzie and Johnson.

CONNECTICUT.

Spontaneous combustion caused the Wisner Shoe Company's factory in Bridgeport to burn, last week Tuesday night, and the loss is about $100,000. Abe Marshall was one of the workmen thrown out of employment, but only for a while.

Two weeks ago, on Saturday morning, Prof. Job Williams and his daughter were on the New York express on his way to Princeton, N. J., to witness the Princeton and Yale handicap. His son Harry won the race by 200 yards. Harry is a Yale student.

Mr. Lawrence Snyder, of New Haven, lost his mother by heart failure two weeks ago, but a snug sum of money was left to him. He has gone to Pennsylvania to stay for good.

Mr. R. D. Livingstone visited New Britain, Branford, and several other places, on his return from New York and New Jersey, on a vacation of ten days.

Mrs. J. D. Bartlett, of North Guilford, returned from a week's visit in Rhode Island last week.

Mr. Robert J. Martling, of Greenwich, has been "gripped" in New Haven. Since she returned home, she got well again.

Mr. Ward, of Holyoke, is on the "go" now. He spent a day or two in Bridgeport and also in New Haven.

Mr. Worcester, of Peterborough, N. H., was in Bridgeport to meet his old friends two weeks ago.

Mr. Theo. I. Lounsbury, of New York, made a flying trip to New Haven and Milford last week.

Mrs. R. D. Beers reached Bridgeport last week from a week's visit to her friends in New York.

Mr. Woolever contemplates visiting friends in New York State with his wife in July.

Mr. John Muth was a victim of La Grippe last week; but not very serious.

Prof. Fay, of the Institution at Hartford, was in Norwich last Sunday.

A fine picture of a new house built recently in Chicago, owned by our old friend, E. N. Bowes, in Chicago, was shown in the Scientific American Building edition of last March.

NEN HAVEN, May 18, '91.

Dramatic Entertainment.

THREE GRAND EXCURSIONS.

All Souls Club's New Officers.

MINOR NOTES.

(From our Philadelphia Correspondent.)

A grand dramatic entertainment will be given by a theatrical branch of Apollo Workingmen's Club in the club hall on Saturday evening, May 30th. The play will be "The Taming of the Shrew," written by William Shakespeare.

All Souls' Club will have its annual excursion to Atlantic City, July 16th. Apollo Club will have a grand excursion and a picnic at Brandywine Springs, Delaware, on Monday, July 27th. Tickets, sixty cents.

The De l'Epee Catholic Deaf-Mute Association's excursion to Atlantic City will take place on August 5th.

The annual meeting of All Souls' Guild will be held in the church to-morrow evening.

Last Tuesday evening, a council of All Souls' Club was re-organized. Rector Koehler re-appointed Mr. H. E. Stevens as President of the club, and the council elected Mr. W. G. Harrison, First Vice-President; Mr. Henry Van Allen, Second Vice-President, and Mr. J. S. Reider, Secretary and Treasurer.

Your correspondent received a pleasant call from Mr. and Mrs. Alvin W. Anthony, who were married in Allentown, Pa., last Saturday, by Rev. J. M. Koehler. They are visiting their relatives here for a few days.

Mr. Hoy, the centre-fielder of St. Louis Base Ball Club, had the full privileges of an Honorary member of Apollo Club, and enjoyed his visit.

The annual exhibition of the Pennsylvania Institution for the Deaf will be held in Young Men's Christian Association Hall next Wednesday evening.

Apollo Club gave a package party to its secretary, Mr. J. E. Moroney, at his house in West Philadelphia, on the 9th inst., while some members of the club entertained Mrs. Gulick and Miss Springsteen, of Trenton, N. J., at Mrs. Belknap's in an evening party. Both parties met a very pleasant success. Mrs. Gulick and Miss Springsteen enjoyed a very pleasant visit at Apollo Club the following evening.

Miss Emma Shields, of Upland, Delaware Co., Pa., is in town, visiting her friends.

Mr. Parlamau, of Wilmington, Del., is in town in search of a job.

Mr. Stephenson, of Morrisville, Pa., was in town and paid a visit to Apollo Club, last week.

An Apron party given by All Souls' Club's social committee, was held in the club hall, last Thursday.

Mr. McCarthy, of the Mutual Base-Ball Club, was over to Buffalo, N. Y., where he visited his relatives for one week.

The dramatic entertainment is under the management of Messrs. W. F. Durian, Jas E. Morony and W. H. Lipsett. Mr. Lipsett will lead the play as Petruccio, who tamed Katharina, the shrew, whose character an unknown lady will represent. Come and enjoy it, or you will regret it.

THE RECORDER.

PHILADELPHIA, Whit-Monday.

NORTH WESTERN ONTARIO.

Mr. John T. Taylor, of Singhampton, an old graduate of the Deaf and Dumb Institute of Belleville, is now farming and is doing well. He was visited by Thomas A. Middleton last week, and they spent an enjoyable time.

John Taylor is practicing base ball with the Singhampton Club and will play a prize game against the Collingwoods on the 25th of May.

J. A. Taylor welcomed a kind letter from Mr. Thomas M. Greene, of London, who is still in the tailoring business.

There was shipped 110,000 speckled trout, from New Castle, to this district, for the lakes and ponds.

The writer would like to know how Mr. Alfred Cowan, formerly of Ontario Institute, is getting along in the National College.

DIRECTORY.

For the convenience of the public, we publish in this column, in ALPHABETICAL ORDER, a list of Societies, Clubs and Associations of Deaf-Mutes.

ALL SOULS WORKING PEOPLE'S CLUB & CLERICAL ASSOCIATION.

This club, organized on September 23d, 1885, and reorganized November 28th, 1888, is entirely non-sectarian, and any deaf person over eighteen years of age may join it by agreeing to pay a small sum of money monthly for its support. The purpose of the club is to supplement the instruction received while at school, by a course of lectures and other literary exercises, and the provision of reading matter of a suitable character. In addition, harmless and rational amusements are provided. The club has the use of the guild rooms in All Souls' Church for the Deaf, Franklin Street, above Green. Officers: President, Harry E. Stevens; Vice-President, Wm. G. Harrison; First Vice-President, Mrs. M. J. Harrison; Second Vice-President, J. S. Reider; Secretary and Treasurer, whose address is No. 1508 Summer Street; Mrs. J. S. Reider, Assistant Secretary; Wm. McKinnay, Assistant Treasurer; and Wm. A. Miles, Sergeant-at-Arms. The club rooms are open on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings.

APOLLO WORKINGMEN'S CLUB.

The object of the Apollo Workingmen's Club is to advance its members in social, intellectual and physical welfare. The club occupies a whole five-roomed house at 1302 Washington Avenue, Philadelphia, and its members are at full liberty to use the house at all hours. Business meetings are held on the first Saturday evening of every month. The officers for 1890-91 are: President, Wm. Henry Lipsett; Vice-President, Henry Blankenship; Secretary, J. R. Lewis; Assistant Secretary, J. A. Turner; and Treasurer, E. D. Brown. Lectures will be given by the President from time to time, and should be addressed to the secretary at 1302 Washington Avenue, Phila.

BALTIMORE DEAF-MUTE SOCIETY.

The Society holds its meetings every alternate Wednesday in the basement of the Primitive Baptist Church, on Madison St., one door east of Calvert St. Its object is for improving the moral condition of the deaf-mute community. Lectures will be announced by the President from time to time. The officers of the Society are: Frank Leitner, President; George W. Boss, Vice-President; John A. Brandlich, Secretary; Jas. H. Moore, Treasurer; and J. W. L. Unsworth, Sergeant-at-Arms. The Secretary's address is No. 533 Port St., Baltimore, Md.

New York, May 18, 1891.

Our purpose is to have every garment we send out prove a credit to us, both in its appearance and usefulness. One of our rightly-made Suits or Overcoats may cost you a dollar or two more than a "slop shop" article, and it certainly pays us less profit than a slovenly-made garment would, but we are trading "for keeps."

$18 to $25 is the range of price for thoroughly good Suits or Spring Overcoats, although we have lower-cost ones and some more expensive.

A. L. Thomas, a deaf-mute salesman, will be glad to show you our stock at the Prince Street store when you can conveniently call to look at clothing, hats or shoes.

Free deliveries to all points within one hundred miles of New York City.
